When they returned from the trip, Henry asked his son, “How did you like your trip, dear?” His son answered, “It was great, Dad! I saw lots of interesting things. At home, we only have one pet dog. We have a garden, but they have green fields where the children can run about freely. We hang lanterns in our garden at festival times, but they can see the bright stars at night. We buy frozen food at the supermarket, but they get fresh food from the farm. We have to lock our doors when we go out, but they can sleep with their doors open. Thanks, Dad. Students from Taizhou Middle School, Jiangsu Province, experience farming during their labor course. As we all know, the life skills like cooking and painting are important and should be taught as part of labor education.

On June 3, 2020, the Ministry of Education (MOE) gave a document showing the revised curriculum( 修改后的方案 ) for senior high schools across the country. Labor education includes housework, school labor and community voluntary services and so on.

“Labor education must be carried out with the purpose to make the right view of the world, life and values and develop an interest in doing chores,” said Vice-Minister of Education Zheng Fuzhi.

According to China Youth Daily, the labor course will take six credits( 学分 ) — the same as the foreign language course and physics. Voluntary service, as part of labor education, would take two credits. The MOE also asks schools to make sure of 40 hours of voluntary service during the full three school years.

According to Xinhua, adding labor education was out of care that the country’s young people do too little housework and that they think labor jobs aren’t important. Because of a lot of school pressure, schools pay more attention to the course of education, and parents may think that the chores waste their kids’ time.

According to a survey, middle school students in China only spend 12 minutes a day on chores, compared with 72 minutes in the US, 42 minutes in South Korea and 30 minutes in France.

However, doing housework does not distract( 使分心 ) young people. Instead, they are necessary for developing a strong working spirit, according to Julie Lythcott-Haims, the writer of How to Raise an Adult. The earlier you started, the better, he said.

42. You can get the credits of the labor course by _____. ( )

- A. The time to carry out labor education.
- B. The way to carry out labor education.
- C. The purpose of carrying out labor education.
- D. The place to carry out labor education.

44. Who spend the most time on housework? ( )

- A. Students in China.
- B. Students in America.
- C. Students in South Korea.
- D. Students in France.

45. What is the main idea of the passage? ( )

- A. Parents should learn the life skills.
- B. Labor is as important as a foreign language.
- C. Young people should pay attention to the course of education.
- D. It's necessary for the students to develop strong working spirits.

Many people go to school for education. They learn languages, history, politics, geography, physics, chemistry and mathematics. Others go to school to learn a skill so that they can make a living.

School education is very important and useful. Yet, no one can learn everything from school. A teacher, no matter how much he knows, can not teach his students everything they want to know.

The teacher's job is to show his students how to learn. He teaches them how to read and how to think, so much more is to be learned outside school by the students themselves.

It is always more important to know how to study by oneself than to memorize some facts or a formula( 公式 ). It is actually quite easy to learn a certain fact in history or a formula in mathematics. But it is very difficult to use a formula to work out a math problem. Great scientists before us didn't even finish primary school, but they were all successful. They would ask many questions as they read. They worked hard all their lives, wasting not a single moment.
